

FREE JOB TRAINING

FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY!

Offered in December 2009

THIS COURSE WILL BE HELD IN:

Fresno CA

The Fresno Workforce Investment Board will be offering free energy auditor training to those that are unemployed. This free training is being made available through The America Reinvestment and Recovery Act (ARRA) Funds.

What is “Energy Auditing”? Energy auditing refers to an inspection of a home with an emphasis on reviewing a homeowner’s current energy consumption and making recommendations on how to reduce that consumption and save money in the most cost-effective way. There has become a newly generated push for environmentally friendly practices or becoming “green”. Energy auditing plays a role because the reduction in energy consumption leads to a reduction in greenhouse gases which are bad for the earth. With new and old state and federal incentives everyone should and will want an energy audit of their home.

What is the best way to become an Energy Auditor? This is an introductory training and is the first step to becoming a professional energy auditor. This course covers the following topics designed to prepare you for the RESNET Home Energy Survey Professional written exam. In order to become part of this fast growing field an individual would need to understand all of the various systems and influences associated with energy consumption (there is a lot more to it than just changing out a light bulb). With the proper understanding and the proper equipment you will be able to make recommendations to the homeowner.
